

At 67.11%, 2019 turnout highest for Lok Sabha polls

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, May 20

AN ESTIMATED 67.11% of the nearly 91 crore electors turned up to cast their vote in this year's seven-phase Lok Sabha elections, the highest ever turnout recorded in any parliamentary polls in India.

The overall turnout in 2014 was 66.40%. But the Election Commission figures are provisional and are subject to change.

The overall turnout was recorded at 67.11%, as per data available on Monday morning.

Out of the 543 Lok Sabha seats, elections were held in 542 constituencies as the EC had cancelled polls to the Vellore constituency on the grounds of excessive use of money power.

The poll panel is yet to announce a fresh date for elections in Vellore.

While there were 83.40 crore voters in the 2014 polls, their number stood at 90.99 crore as on April 23, the day third phase of polling took place for the 2019 Lok Sabha elections.

In the 2009 elections, the turnout was pegged at 56.9%.

In 2019, the voter turnout saw a decreasing trend from the first to the seventh phase, which took place on Sunday.

According to data provided by the EC, in phase one, the turnout was 69.61%. It went down marginally to 69.44% in phase two and further down to 68.40% in the third phase.

In the fourth phase, the turnout saw a dip of nearly three per cent and stood at 65.50%. In the fifth phase, the turnout was 64.16%, but went up marginally to 64.40% in the sixth and penultimate phase.

In the seventh and the last phase, it was 65.15%, according to the EC's Voter Turnout app on Monday evening.

The cumulative turnout figure of the first six phases stood at 67.34%, which is 1.21% more than the corresponding constituencies in 2014.

Madhya Pradesh's turnout was 5.92% more than that in 2014 and Himachal Pradesh's 5.1% higher than that in the last Lok Sabha polls.

Chandigarh on the other hand recorded a massive dip in turnout as compared to the last elections. The turnout went down by 10.27%.

Punjab also witnessed a lower turnout compared with 2014. The gap was a glaring 5.64%.

In most of the states the turnout was marginally higher by 2.5% than 2014.

Interestingly, the gap between male and female voters turning out to cast their vote is narrowing since 2009. In 2009, the gap was 9%, which went down to 1.4% in 2014. It now tentatively stands at 0.4%.

The gap between male and female voters turning out to vote is narrowing. In 2009, it was 9%, which went down to 1.4% in 2014, and now tentatively stands at 0.4%
